

the word

with Amy Edwards

Things get hairy as drugs get dissed

NEWCASTLE radio presenter Craig Hamilton was flexing his hairy chest while Paul Murphy was threatening to find a tighter court jester outfit at the Forum gym at Honeysuckle yesterday.

The business identities were dressed up to promote Friday's Dress Down Drug Free Day.

This year, Hunter Life

Education has introduced The Dress Down Drug Free Challenge, which gives Newcastle businesses the opportunity to register a team and raise funds while getting fit.

Hamilton is a presenter for 1233 ABC Newcastle, while Murphy is the managing director of Churchills Carpet Court.

Each year the men take part in a wacky launch for the campaign, but luckily this year it didn't involve flexing their vocal skills.

Hamilton sang the Abba hit Mamma Mia at the Queens Wharf Brewery last year.

To take part in Dress Down Drug Free, an initiative about the misuse of drugs, visit hunterlifeeducation.org.au.

